

ASEP2015 Report

Through ASEP 2015 I learned a lot. In Japan, I used to compare my English ability to other Japanese students. However, ASEP 2015 made me realize that I should expand my horizon because every participants was speaking English very well for granted. During ASEP, I couldn't express my thoughts well in English once or twice, but I was motivated to study English more harder. Also, I learned that I should have a flexible way of thinking. While working with students in LCVS students, we faced some problems such as the time restriction and deciding what gestures to use in our play. Then Taiwanese students asked for help from participants of ASEP 2014 in LCVS. They came to see our rehearsal and suggested some improvement to our play though they had exams tomorrow. Thanks to them, we could get through these problems. I really appreciate it. While I stayed with host family ,I was amazed by their humanity. They treated me like I'm a part of them and tried to communicate in plain English. ASEP was a good experience for me and I really want to join it again. I'm so grateful for everyone who involved with me.
